The Philips CD150 was one of the first cheaper CD players that Philips made. This player was released in 1985; CD players were no longer new and the technology was starting to mature. Quite a few steps had been taken to lower the production costs of this player and players like it, including: A new laser mechanism.

Inside Classic Audio: Philips CD150
This new Philips CD150 can stand comparison with the best CD players I have yet encountered—except for some toprrice models. At £229 it must represent the best value for money around: the more sophisticated players in the new Philips series will offer more features, but they will be doing very well if they can surpass the Philips CD150 for sheer sound.
