History of Ancient Pharmacy. Hygieia were in reality hospitals attended by skilled physicians. The cure or improvement of the patient was ascribed to the power of the god or goddess invoked by the worship or offerings of the patient. Treatment was often indicated by the god, in a vision, to the physician.

For most of its history ancient Egypt had two major writing systems. Hieroglyphs, a system of pictorial signs used mainly for formal texts, originated sometime around 3200 BC. Hieratic, a cursive system derived from hieroglyphs that was used mainly for writing on papyrus, was nearly as old.Beginning in the seventh century BC, a third script derived from hieratic, known today as demotic, emerged.
